

Elsewhere, Home

Author:	Leila Aboulela
Goodreads Rating:	4.00
Published:	Expected publication: July 2nd 2018 by Telegram
Genre:	Short Stories
Language	English
Pages:	256

Elsewhere, Home.pdf

Elsewhere, Home.epub

Which part of ourselves is lost when life takes us somewhere new? A bride joining her husband in Britain yearns for the freedom of her student days in Khartoum; a romance fails to bloom between a spoiled Sudanese girl and a working-class Scottish student; and a lonely mother learns from her obsession with a writer how to find her own voice in Abu Dhabi. Set against the backdrop of the British immigrant experience, the men and women between these pages steer their own paths through an unwelcoming, sometimes hostile new world. Vividly evoking the overlapping worlds of Sudan, Egypt and Britain, these lyrical, intimate stories tell us of the lives of those lost between cultures. Through their journeys, we discover the true sense of what it means to belong.