From ancient times to modern, artists have copied, borrowed from, satirized, and honored each other's paintings. Now kids can look to the masters for inspiration and instruction. The partially reproduced works of art collected here provide a feast for the imagination. From an ancient Egyptian coffin or Goya portrait to modern abstract by Picasso or a photograph by Stieglitz, these works draw the hand irresistibly to the nearest crayon, marker, or colored pencil. At the same time, they provide a brief introduction to art history.
