Falen feels like an outsider. Raised in the male dominated, warrior culture of Variss, she struggles to be a good Varisean woman. She hates poetry. She's no good at art. And the thought of marriage makes her shudder. Instead, to the eternal disappointment of her father, Falen wants to be a scientist.

She dreams of journeying to the southern city of Ral Tora to study at its famous engineering academy. But Falen's dreams, it seems, are doomed to failure. That is, until a chance encounter with a stranger that could change everything. Could this stranger hold the key to Falen's hopes? Or will she realize she should be careful what she wishes for?
