Former gay porn star Anthony Ayotte's Hollywood dream is finally coming true. Buzz is surrounding his new indie film, and Tony will do anything to keep his star rising. He never wants to return to the world of being paid to get laid. With rumors flying about him and his co-star, Gabe, the media circus is only growing. Fortunately, Tony is eager for all the publicity he can get. Up-and-coming actor Gabe Dotson is desperate for his big break, but he's worried he got more than he bargained for. With compromising photos of him and Tony circulating, the press and the public are hungry for details. Gabe isn't sure what to feel, but he needs to distance himself or face his family's disapproval. Tony may crave the limelight, but Gabe's insecurities are starting to creep back in. As tensions reach the breaking point, can Tony and Gabe have a future together, or was their relationship doomed from the first take?
