Yesterday's future returns in this sparkling archival collection of the world's first computerized comic book.

In the day before tomorrow, all jobs are temporary, and control is in the hands of a few ruth men. The world's biggest, most influential media syndicate has accidentally discovered a limit source of cheap creative talent: stealing people's brains out of their heads. Only one man can stop them: a temporary cop with a golden brain. A man on a mission whose mind is capable of absorbing the talents of others... permanently. A man named Sadr al-din Morales. His friends call him... SHATTER.
