The life of Lord Rodric Alexander changes drastically, when he wins the castle of Crawford during a drunken card game. The rich and blase Scottish lord is still young, but already tired of life and searching for something new to make him happy.

The castle, however, doesn't come alone. Lord Rodric is more than surprised to find out that the sister of Ross Crawford (the man from whom he won the castle) refuses to leave the castle and accept him as her Lord. Alison Crawford is everything Rodric despises in a woman – she is intelligent, strong willed, determined and proud. When they met it is like a hurricane had come to Crawford Castle, but the passion between them is always there and with time they both fell victims to it. The high-stakes bet had given Rodric more than he had ever wanted and it seems love might be in the cards. In other words, he had met his match. Note: Contains Explicit Scenes of Passion and Desire.
