Jesse is asked to investigate when Flo Garner, a local Greene County bookkeeper, discovers a hotel receipt implicating her client in the murder of his wealthy business partner. Until now, Donald Rhodes has eluded prosecution in the death of Hank Sharp, but that all changes when Jesse Watson and her P.I. partner, Billy Blackhawk take on the case, and go in pursuit of the truth. Meanwhile, Savannah Kelley, a close friend and well-known author, has a dead body in her garage. In a panic, she calls Jesse for help with her problem instead of calling the police.

But there's no way around it, the police have to be told. All Savannah can do is stand by and watch her career circle the drain as the evidence mounts and her lies come back to haunt her. She killed someone, but was it self-defense or murder? That's what Jesse intends to find out. Lives are turned upside down and tensions build to an explosive state as the final battle is played out like a scene in a movie. Nobody walks away unscathed. Death is the winner - and no one is safe in this tale of lies, greed and betrayal.
