Trina is a quiet, reserved music teacher at an inner-city elementary school.

Because of the traumatic events of her childhood, she's skittish of people in general, but men especially frighten her. However, when Lucca Ellis appears in her life, he refuses to take no for an answer. Will he be able to help her overcome the past that has kept her a prisoner for over eight years? Kat is a woman scorned and out for revenge. Wronged by the men in her life, she thrives on belittling and dominating all men that she comes in contact with. Her end goal is to make the one man, the one who stole her life away as a child, pay for his actions, and she doesn't care who she has to destroy to get there. These two lives that both thrive on control, were never supposed to overlap, but anything can happen... When the Sun Goes Down.
