Margot thought she had it all with her lovers Jane and Ethan Miller. That was until war hero Danny walked into their lives. After months spent in the arms of the loving Jane and Ethan Miller, Margot feels she's finally finding herself. She's battled self-doubt and low self-esteem after her divorce and having both a man and woman's attentions has given her completion. Or so she thinks. When the dashing war hero Danny MacIntyre walks into her life, she's thrown into a tailspin. While her heart slips into his hands, she knows part of it firmly remains with the Millers. As she devises a plan to unite them all, fear threatens to control her. Can she have two pieces of cake and eat her pie too?
